

The Good Camper:

He is one who knows that self-discipline is the beginning of all good camping.

He is careful of property and does no damage in camp or out.

He takes pride in the camp, never dropping litter, but picking up that which the lazy and selfish have dropped.

He is not content to do only his share of the work. He does more.

He is a sportsman. He plays as hard as he works, win or lose.

He is cheerful when the sun shines. He laughs when it rains.

He is considerate of all living creatures.

He everywhere guards the good name of the camp, and of The Boys' Brigade.

He puts the needs of others first at all times and he remembers the Giver of all good things.
